RED + CROSS NOTES

The sale of home cooking by the Red Cross on Saturday of this week will be the last until further notice.

It is expected that everything for the sale will be at the town hall by 2:30 p.m. and it is hoped that no one will neglect this opportunity.

A Charter Member

Mr. Nussbaumer was a charter member of Wrangell Lodge No. 866, Loyal Order of Moose. For some time past he has been secretary of the lodge and no organization ever had a more faithful keeper of records.

It was therefore fitting that at this farewell lunch the lodge should have presented Mr. Nussbaumer with a nugget ring made from Alaska gold as a slight token of the esteem in which he was held by his brother Moose. Upon receiving the gift Mr. Nussbaumer expressed his appreciation in a most feeling manner.

On Friday, November 10, and each Friday following, some members of the Red Cross will be in the town hall between 3 and 4 o'clock to receive donations of money for the Red Cross. It is hoped that each family in Wrangell will make it a duty to make even a small donation each month. No donation will be too small and the committee will probably not limit anyone. Don't forget the date, November 10.

There will be a meeting of the executive board of the Red Cross at the town hall next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

A Loss to the Community

In the departure from Wrangell of Mr. Nussbaumer the Wilson Sylvester Mill company have lost a most valuable employee and the town has lost a young man whose many sterling qualities won for him the esteem of all.

We are sorry to lose him, but in time of war it seems that it is usually the best who are the first to enter the service of their country.

It is earnestly hoped that he will come back to us without a scratch after the war is over.

Robert Edmiston, eleven year old son of Mrs. Sadie Edmiston,

NICK NUSSBAUMER GIVEN FAREWELL BY MOOSE LODGE

Following the adjournment of the Moose lodge Friday night there was a lunch in honor of Nicholas Nussbaumer who recently enlisted in the Twentieth engineers, and who left Friday night for the States. The lodge expected to give Mr. Nussbaumer a farewell party when he left, but his leave taking was so sudden that there was not time to arrange for anything more than a stag party.

During the lunch Rev. Mr. Corser was called upon and spoke most entertainingly and impressively. It was plain that the speaker did not wish to be serious, but his remarks betrayed the deep regard he felt for the young soldier who was leaving. In closing, Mr. Corser said: "In saying goodbye to our friend there is in addition to a deeper personal regard the feeling of admiration that one feels for a hero. Brother Nussbaumer, we all wish you Godspeed; we know that you are going to render your country valuable service. Your safe return to us will be an occasion for rejoicing."

Upon receiving the gift Mr. Nussbaumer expressed his appreciation in a most feeling manner. He said that this evidence of goodwill from his closest associates had touched him as deeply as anything that ever occurred in his life. The lunch was scarcely over when the whistle of the Princess Alice was heard, and all present accompanied Mr. Nussbaumer to the boat for a final farewell.

BARNES-HILMAN

Well Known Young Man of Wrangell Takes Unto Himself a Wife

BRIDE FROM LOS ANGELES

MARRIED—In Seattle, Washington, Saturday, October 26, 1917, George Elton Barnes of Wrangell, Alaska, and Miss Daisy Maria Hilman of Los Angeles, California.

George Elton Barnes is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Barnes, pioneers of Wrangell. He was born here and spent his early school days here, leaving only when it was necessary in order to attend high school. He is an energetic young man of unusual stability and has a host of friends in the North who will rejoice to learn that he has taken the right step.

The bride is a daughter of H. J. Hilman, a business man of Los Angeles. She is unknown in Wrangell but a lady of our acquaintance who has known Miss Hilman for several years writes that she is a young woman whom it is a pleasure to know.

Mr. and Mrs. Elton Barnes will arrive in Wrangell about the first of March.

CATHOLIC LADIES SCORE ANOTHER SOCIAL SUCCESS

A most enjoyable social event was the card party and dance given last evening in the Redmen's hall by the Altar society of the Catholic church.

The weather was rainy, stormy and generally disagreeable (something very unusual in Wrangell) but it would take something more than a downfall of pitchforks, alligators and nigger babies to keep Wrangell people away from one of these Catholic functions which are always so thoroughly enjoyed. It has become an established fact in Wrangell that the Altar society never disappoints.

A game of progressive whist was the amusement in the early part of the evening. When scores were counted prizes were awarded as follows: ladies' first prize, Mrs. Hanckins; ladies' consolation prize, Mrs. M. O. Johnson; men's first prize, Mr. Butt; men's consolation, Mr. Tarasov.

Following the card party there was a dance downstairs which was enjoyed as thoroughly as was the whist party. During the evening a delectable lunch was served.

Forty thousand feet of picked spruce timber for aeroplane construction was shipped last week by the Wilson Sylvester company to the Cheatham Lumber company at New York. The spruce was shipped on the Prince John to Prince Rupert and there loaded on cars which will go to New York direct.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gadd left for Seattle on the Spokane today. Mr. Gadd will return to Wrangell in about three weeks. Mrs. Gadd will make an extended visit at Anacortes.

Dave Steel who has been chef for the Bon Alaska Mining company at Groundhog since the first of April left Monday for Seattle where he goes to have an operation performed.

OFFICIAL RECORD OF GAME KILLED IN THE CASSIAR DISTRICT FOR YEAR 1917

[Upon the request of the Sentinel Hon. H. W. Dodd, government agent at Telegraph Creek, was kind enough to furnish the Sentinel with a list of the game killed in the Cassiar district the past season together with the official measurements as they are recorded in the office of the provincial game warden. Wrangell being the northern starting point for the greatest big game region on the American continent our readers will doubtless find the report most interesting.]

Scotia's Firebrand Signal.
Crantara was a military signal employed by the Scottish Highland chiefs. It was a firebrand or wooden cross, which after being dipped in the blood of a goat was sent by a swift footed herald, who delivered it without a word save the name of the place of rendezvous. The fleetest runner of that hamlet was instantly dispatched with the signal to the next, whence it was borne to a third, and so on until every village within the chief's domain had received the summons. It was last circulated in 1745.

Accepting the Inevitable.
Wonderful are the Hindus for accepting the inevitable. Tell one of these that he must take castor oil and he will drain the oleaginous cup to the dregs and smack his lips. Tell him that his leg must be amputated and he will present the limb for dismemberment and smile as he sees it severed. Tell him that he is to be hanged and, with no touch of emotion whatever he will reply, "Jo hook'm" ("Whatever is ordered"), just as if he had been told that he must have his corns cut.—London Standard.

Answering the Dean.
The man whom Thackeray calls "the greatest wit of all time"—Dean Swift of St. Patrick's cathedral, Dublin—was as ready to take as to make a retort.
"Why don't you doff your hat to me?" he asked a small boy who was coaxing along an obstreperous goat.
"I will," said the lad, "if your honor will hold the goat's horns," an answer that delighted the dean.

FORGET THE HALF SOLES

FIT yourself out with Goodrich "Hipress" Boots and say "So Long" to the cobbler for good. "Hipress" Boots—just as they come—are made of such tough stuff that they will way outwear any other boot, even after it has been tapped with the best leather half sole you can buy.

And they're the one boot that CAN'T LEAK because they're molded into one piece, sole and upper without a seam. Just try the real comfort of a pair of Hipress."

SCHNABEL LONGS TO RETURN NORTH

Former Deputy Marshal Is Now Chief of Police at Caldwell, Idaho

William F. Schnabel, for some time deputy United States Marshal under Marshal H. L. Faulkner, stationed at Wrangell, and now chief of police at Caldwell, Idaho, in letter recently received by Chief of Police Harding of Juneau writes of his longing to return to the land of the aurora borealis. Schnabel, or "Bill," as he is familiarly known by a large circle of friends in the city says:

"I would be a happy man if I could once more spend a few days with the 'old gang' at Juneau, Ketchikan, or Wrangell. I often have an irresistible longing for Alaska. It is impossible to shake off the lure of the North.

"Where I am now located I have friends, good climate, everything heart desires, but still I long to camp once more among the mighty mountains and rivers of the glorious North. I wish I could once again kill a moose, hunt a sheep, or kill a grizzly. Man is born to kick, I suppose; never satisfied. I am always restless, always want to look beyond the hill or mountains, always want to go where things are wild and nature is most beautiful. To camp once more in the woods near the mighty Yukon would be a treat to me. What a wonderful spell is produced by the word 'Yukon.' It recalls to me days that will never come again; it recalls hardships, hunger, poverty, and yet I long to try it all over again. The world will never know, never understand, what that word means to a sourdough. I love Alaska and its people. If I can't live in Idaho, I want to live in Alaska. God bless her and let her bloom and prosper. I have many friends in Juneau whom I love from the bottom of my heart and I love the old town."

Schnabel was for many years an officer in various camps in the interior of Alaska.—Juneau Dispatch.

The Volley Ball club met for the first time this season at St. Philip's Gymnasium last Thursday evening. There was a good attendance and a spirited game.

Volley ball is a game like lawn tennis. It has to be played to be appreciated. It is not so strenuous as basketball but fully as scientific. Any number can play and there is room for more members. It meets every Thursday evening.

NORTH MAGNETIC POLE.

It is Not a Stationary Point, but is Constantly Shifting.

Only the experts understand that the north pole and the north magnetic pole are two entirely different things. As a matter of fact, there are few localities on the earth's surface where the compass points due north. The reason is because the north magnetic pole or area lies in the vicinity of King William's Land, just off the arctic coast of North America, in Bothnia.

When this magnetic pole is between us and the north pole the compass points due north. As we go either east or west from this line it is easy to see that the compass is off to a certain degree. If we were to travel north of the magnetic pole the needle would point south; west of it the needle would point east.

Sir James Ross in 1831 located the north magnetic pole approximately at a point up in Bothnia. In 1903 Captain Roald Amundsen in the ship Gjøa set out on a three years' expedition, relocated the magnetic pole and made the "northwest passage" for which mariners have striven since the days of Henry Hudson.

Terrrestrial magnetic force is different in every part of the earth's surface and is not always the same at a given point. It is subject to regular daily and yearly changes.

Amundsen posted himself near the seat of the magnetic power and for nineteen months, day and night, with his party, took readings of their instruments, both inclination and declination. He also made short excursions into the region of the magnetic pole and was able by the aid of the declination observations to prove that the magnetic north pole does not have a stationary situation, but is continually moving.

But the general location is where Sir James Ross first had the honor to place it.—Chicago Tribune.

Doubtful.

"Mother," said Jimmy, "the master paid me a fine compliment today."

"Oh, did he?" said the delighted mother.

"What did he say to you?"

"Well, he didn't exactly say anything to me, but he told George that he was the worst boy in school and that he liked even me better than him."—Chicago News.

Although an integral part of the one system, each branch has had assigned to it the full amount of Capital required by the Territorial Banking Board for the establishment of a Bank in such a location. Each branch is therefore equipped to serve its customers as fully as any independent bank, but with the added strength and resources of the entire institution to draw upon. Furthermore each is responsible to the Territorial Banking Board, is examined and supervised independently and renders its statement direct to the Board. The Bank of Alaska is therefore, because of its double supervision and safeguards, peculiarly "An Institution of Strength and Character."

After November 1, every telegraph, telephone or wireless message costing more than 15 cents will bear a 5 cent tax; freight and express packages, 1 cent for each 20 cents charged. Life insurance, 8 cents on each $100; fire, marine and casualty insurance, 1 cent on each dollar or fractional part thereof of the premium charged. Policies of reinsurance are exempt from this tax. The theatre tax of 1 cent on each 10 cents of admission charged is also effective November 1.

Stamp taxes on bonds, notes, bills of sale, etc., become effective December 1; also a tax of 1 cent on parcels post packages.

A war tax of $5.00 is payable November 1 on all power and sailing boats of not over five net tons, with graduated increase for larger craft, except boats used exclusively for trade or national defense, or those built according to plans and specifications of the navy department.

Forms to accompany the tax and full information may be secured by pleasure-boat owners from any customs house.

THE CLEVER KOREANS.

Ingenuity Taken the Place of Fuel in Heating Their Homes.

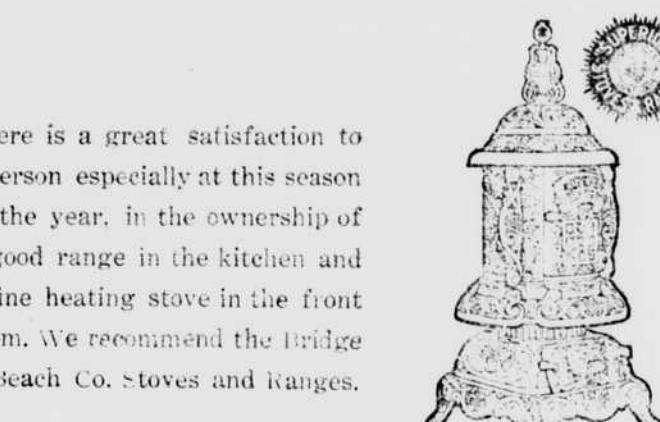

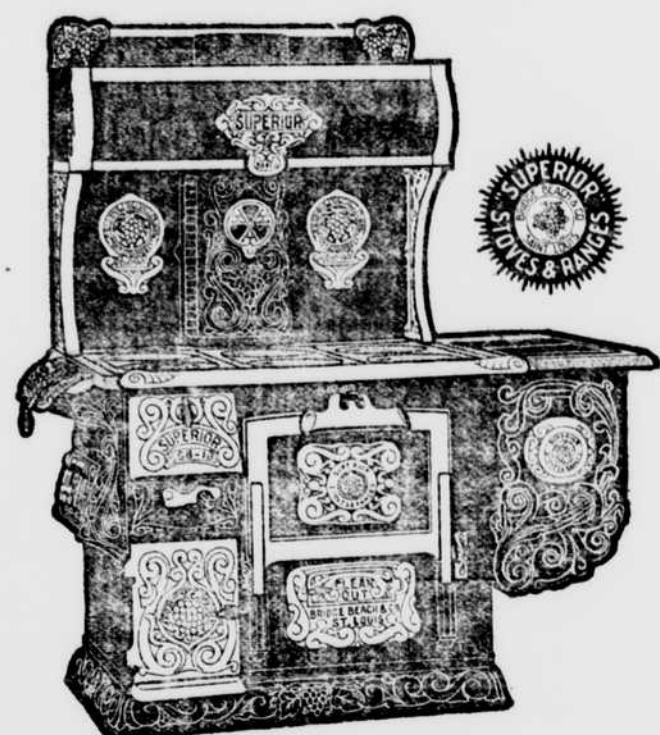

Our fuel resources are still so ample that we find it hard to conceive of a country so poorly supplied with fuel as Korea is. According to an article in the Journal of School Geography, the land bears very little timber, and, although good deposits of bituminous and anthracite coal have been found, the government, before the Japanese occupation at least, would give no concessions for mining. The natives dig the surface coal out in a crude way and let the debris and rain fill up the shafts. Accordingly, the coal, when they finally get it, is usually well rotted from dampness. This poor stuff is sold for as much as $9 a ton—a price that makes it inaccessible for the majority of the natives.

Korean ingenuity, however, has found a means of combating these unfavorable conditions. When a Korean starts to build his house he first lays down a system of flues where the floor is to be. These flues begin at a fireplace, usually built in an outer shed or in a closed alleyway connected with the house.

From the fireplace the flues branch out like the ribs of a fan and end in a trench at the back of the floor space. This trench in turn opens into a chimney, usually built at some distance from the house. When the flues are completed the builder carefully covers them over with flagstones. He then cements the whole floor and covers it with a sort of thick oiled paper, for which Korea is famous. The rest of the house is then built round the completed floor.

The heating system works in this way: When it is time to cook the rice for the morning meal the housewife lights a little straw or brushwood in the fireplace in the outer shed. While the rice is cooking the heat from the fireplace passes through the flues, heating the stone flags of the floor and diffusing a pleasant warmth that lasts until it is time to prepare the next meal. Two heatings a day generally suffice to keep the floor warm.

On the floor the people sit by day and sleep by night. The heavy oiled paper that covers the floor prevents any smoke from entering the room. Since the occupants always leave their shoes at the door, the paper wears a long time and gradually takes on rich brown color. So here the Koreans sit through the severe winter in their snug little houses. There is no smoke to bother them and no ashes to litter up the house, and all this comfort is brought about by a few handfuls of straw or brushwood.
